BENCH STARS MAY GET THEIR CHANCE SOON

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, July 1.—Those ball players who have been holding down the bench for so long that they have ceased to hope they might ever get a chance to prove their worthiness in continuous combat may have their chances now that so many ball and bat artists are getting ready to help whip the flun.

Nearly every baseball club has its pinch hitter or pinch fielder or just handy man, floating around the bench, waiting for a chance to get into the game. Lots of these men come to the major leagues, live their careers in partial oblivion and drift back to the minors without having been given a real chance to show what they could do. New York clubs have been full of them. John McGraw is constantly being pointed out as a man who didn't know what he was doing when he left the or that dragged for a song, only to see the released get begin making himself famous.

Marty Kavanagh is one of this kind of heroes. Jim Thorpe, a fellow Wally Pipp was one and so was Dick Redfield.

It looks very much as though Jim Thorpe is going to get a real chance now. The Sporting News says that among the Giants will give him a chance to become a regular. Any athlete who can do what Jim accomplished in the American association has the stuff to become a real honest-to-goodness big leaguer, so watch Jim closely.

EVERS RIGHT MAN FOR JOB IN FRANCE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, July 1.—No mistake was made when John Evers was chosen as baseball generalissimo behind the firing lines in France.

The officials in charge of training camp activities might have selected some minor league player who could have done the purpose with just as much dispatch, but they could not have found a more capable man than the "Little Preacher."

Years of experience as a student and player in the National pastime Johnny Evers stands forth today as one of the smartest men in the game.

He is a little pepper box, it is true, and during his major league career he was the pivot of many a baseball team. He has nothing to do with his value as a coach and chief adviser of our soldier boys who play the game on French soil when not busy on the firing line.

Evers in France will not go the same way as Evers in the National league. He will have no pennant fights to work upon his injury and no umpires to disagree with. He will be in absolute charge, and his knowledge of the game, his ability as an organizer and his personal personality will be a wonderful help to the team.

What's more Evers will be immensely popular. Every soldier boy on French soil knows Evers as the greatest second baseman of a decade, and when he puts his personality into the work he is bound to get results.

Evers has taken a Christy Mathewson opportunity. He has always been a big man in the National game, and he will be a bigger one when he returns.

FIND HURLERS CAN HIT AND GRAB FLIES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, July 1.—Babe Ruth's feats in the outfield for the Boston Red Sox bring to mind the pitchers of the past who changed from hurlers to outfielders.

These pitchers became doubly valuable to their clubs when they were called upon to do some catching at the plate and chasing a fly with the vigor of a Felsch, Cobb or Speaker.

Flingers are not men who can step to the plate in a pinch and swing the dust of the ball. These pitchers become doubly valuable to their clubs when they are called upon to do some catching at the plate and chasing a fly with the vigor of a Felsch, Cobb or Speaker.

Walter Johnson, once called the greatest pitcher in the candidate for that dubious title, was one of the best hitters in the American league.

In Cleveland we have the spectacle of a pitcher being made over into an outfielder, since Joe Wood cast aside the finger's duties and began patrolling the outer work. Like his brother successes, Wood's greatest value lies in his ability to hit 'em far. Ray in his ability to hit 'em far. Ray in his ability to hit 'em far.

Joe McGinnis pitched a shutout victory a few days ago as if to prove that the old iron arm is not entirely through.

OFFICIAL ARMY BOXING RULES MADE PUBLIC

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, July 1.—Official army boxing rules modified to govern contests among the million and a half men in training have been issued by War Department officials.

The new rules are a modification of the National League's rules which laid stress on fast, clever fighting. Greater credit is given to the boxer who is aggressive in spite of punishment than to the one who covers up or clinches.

"A million and a half men of the new army are being taught to box," says Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft, head of the Athletic Division of the Commission. "Because it develops in them qualities of alertness and pugnacity which make them better fighting fighters. Success in bayonet fighting depends upon aggressive determination and attack even more than upon skill. Boxing develops that aggressiveness in offense. A forward-looking boxer is not charged means a 98 per cent of fighting men returned to safety. That is one important reason why the new boxing rules are a high premium on offense rather than on defense."

All back stopping, covering up and purely defensive work are discouraged under the army boxing rules and each contestant is made subject to a penalty for such work. This latter recommendation is a direct departure from the accepted standard of boxing which puts a premium on purely defensive tactics.

Under the new rules a total of six blows constitutes the ground plan of the boxing program. The minimum of a series of blows must be made of such a character in the final judgment of points. "The value of a blow cannot be overestimated and should be considered a prime factor in the boxing program," it is stipulated.

Under the army rules the referee is shown of much power. Many of his active functions have been delegated to two judges, each of whom is assisted by a clerk. Fouls are clearly defined and are within the jurisdiction of the referee who may disqualify immediately any contestant for attempting to use unsportsmanlike tactics. Downs are limited to the standard of ten seconds. To gain fast action the time limit per round has been made two minutes instead of three minutes, for minutes instead of three rounds will be boxed except in the case of divisional championship contests which may run six rounds.

Outfielder, Clarence Walker, has made four home runs over the high left field fence in Boston. He did this by hitting a number of the tricker twice while a number of the Browns, once when he was with the Red Sox and once this season as a Mackman.

Joe McGinnis pitched a shutout victory a few days ago as if to prove that the old iron arm is not entirely through.

The Braves have yet to win their first game of the season from the Giants. McGraw's men have now taken seven in a row from the Braves.

Jack Barry, Ernie Shore and Chick Shorten have entered a training school for naval officers at which they expect to win commissions as ensigns. Barry gave up his rank as a chief yeoman to enter the school.

Rawlings, at short for the Braves, is one of the best fielders now covering that position in the National league.

The White Sox won their pennant last year by doing Jackson was not doing anything like the terrible execution with his bat that he started with this year, so the loss of Jackson can hardly be said to be crushing. Eddie Collins is hitting much better than he did a year ago, so Jackson's loss is made up for. Therefore, the attack of the Sox has suffered little. Williams has not doing the work as a year ago. The Sox is just beginning to swing into good form. Schellenbach has been going well. Joe Benz has shown signs of returning to the White Sox. Dave Dandridge is still arriving at big league effectiveness.

WILL START HEALTH SURVEY IN WISCONSIN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., July 1.—What beyond doubt will prove to be the most comprehensive survey ever made of the health resources and actual conditions in Wisconsin is about to be started by the health and recreation department of the woman's committee, Wisconsin State Council of Defense, working in co-operation with the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association and the State Board of Health. It is being issued in the form of a list of which is almost ready for mailing to the communities. Others will follow and the result when tabulated will represent a complete statement of what is being done and what needs to be done, to conserve the health of Wisconsin people.

"To strengthen one's defenses, one must first know where the weak spots are," is the caption of the first section, which aims to secure a complete inventory of existing agencies in each community, which can be utilized in public health work. Questions are directed to the organization, maintenance and function of health departments. Other pertain to school inspection, public health nurses, open air schools, water supply, dispensaries and clinics, hospitals, milk supply, sewage disposal, garbage disposal, food regulations and recreational facilities.

"An intelligent understanding of what our present resources are is absolutely essential if we are to guard our communities against increased disease dangers due to war conditions and the shortage of doctors and nurses," says Mrs. E. P. Bickel, chairman of the department in her letter to the county units who will undertake the survey.

Remember you are invited to spend the Fourth here and have a really good time. We are not after your money, but your presence. Come early and stay late.

It's What You Save, Not What You Earn, That Makes Success

ROCKEFELLER and Carnegie became possessors of great wealth because in their youth they were masters in little savings—because they learned to spend less than they earned, and invested their savings.

Fortune is within the grasp of every American who learns the lesson of thrift. Save a part of your earnings every day and become a bond buyer. Teach thrift to your child by example. Inject the spirit of saving and thrift into every boy and we will develop a mighty civilization.

Buy a first mortgage 6% bond safeguarded under the Straus Plan for your boy and let him cash the coupons and re-invest the interest. Then note the influence it will have on his life. It will make him more manly and independent. It will stimulate him with vigor and energy to earn, save, and invest for himself. It will make him a success in life, for the solid foundation of a business career has been laid.

Protected 6% Investments

First mortgage bonds safeguarded under the Straus Plan are investments pure and simple. They do not contain one element of speculation. They are secured by improved real estate in the biggest and most prosperous cities of the United States—land and buildings that produce an income three times the amount necessary to pay the interest on the bonds, and discharge a part of the mortgage every year and provide for the upkeep of the property.

These bonds are the favorite investments of thousands of people all over the United States who have invested hundreds of millions of dollars in them for 36 years without loss of a single dollar of interest or principal. They are purchased by banks, insurance companies and trustees of estates because they are absolutely safe and pay 6% as regularly as night follows day.

They can be bought in amounts of $100, $500 and $1000.

It will pay you to learn more about these bonds.

FOOLISH, WICKED AND CRIM- INAL.

"Of all the foolish proposals made in connection with the war, the most foolish is the proposal to place a boycott on the enemy goods to be begun
after the war," says an eastern exchange.

"Such proposals are in direct contravention of the law and constitution of the United States, which forbid any unauthorized individual meddling with international relations.

"Trading with the enemy is a full offense, and to trade against the enemy in contravention of a covenant
of peace is in a category of higher criminality.

"Proposals against the enemy are as foolish from this side of the water as from the Central Powers, for they stimulate the enemy and in nowise
aid in his defeat.

"What does Germany need to forward its home propaganda more than a declaration broadcast in enemy countries that the German people can have no place either 'in the sun,' on the sea, or on the land, or in international trade?

"It is too early yet for anybody to formulate terms of peace or terms of trade after peace. The victor will dictate both, and the problem of every man, woman, and child in this country today is to help make the Allies
the victors.

"If we are really fighting for a universal international peace, we have to recognize in that peace both Turk and Teuton, and after settling with them for all we can collect in damages, we must put them into working order to pay their debts to the world.

"We may have to advance them both food and capital. We may have to open avenues for their cripples, their sick, and their orphans. When you have crushed a nation and its autocratic government, you have got to insure its people a new government
and a future.

"In any peace settlement from this war, we should, if possible, improve upon two great examples. General Grant said to the South: 'We do not desire to possess your sword; take home your horses; you will need them for the plow.' Great Britain said to the South African Boers: 'Here is forty million dollars to restock your farms.'

"It is this kind of treatment after victory that has made South Africa
an integral and vital force in the British Empire, and this is something the Turks cannot comprehend.

"We have got to show the Teuton autocracy a democracy at war, a democracy triumphant, and then a democracy at peace, asking to include the peace of the world.

"We do not intend to promote the peace of the world by proposals to harvest nations or tongues or peoples
after the war and signatures to a treaty of peace."

THE FOURTH.

Following the suggestion of the state council of defense, Janesville will hold a patriotic celebration of the nation's birthday. There will be no fireworks, no military display, nothing speculalar in the way of parades, but the observation of the day will be fitting to the solemnity of the occasion. There will be band music, there will be chorus singing, a program in the park, public speaking and the impressiveness of the day brought home to the citizen generally. The exercises are not designed to bring outside visitors to Janesville, but all are welcome, but to entirely patriotic citizens of the state.

The day on which the old bell in the tower above the hall of deliberation,
the Liberty Bell of today—rang forth the announcement the deed had been enacted. That this nation was free and independent and that a republic had been created on this side of the Atlantic whose influence would spread to the other world across the waters and be an inspiration of all down-trodden and oppressed people.
Little did the creators of this nation
realize that in this year, over a century and forty-two years later, that our boys in khaki would be on European soil, fighting side by side with the French and English, in the ranks with the British and Italian, fighting the greatest foe that this world has ever known. The enemy to humanity—the Beast of Berlin. Thursday is the nation's birthday and it is right and fitting that Janesville and all Rock county pay tribute by proper ceremonies. Such is the program planned and that it will receive the attention and support of citizens is certain. These are war days, and we have many hours of thought and deliberation, and what better day can these thoughts be given prominence than on the natal of the nation for whose integrity and worth our boys are fighting across the water and our people here at home supporting?

THE ALLEN SLACKERS.

It is a hard fact, justice that hundreds of thousands of alien residents can now step into the jobs that our own young men have left to go to war.
The aliens are practically Americans.
They got all the benefits of American life. Yet if they retain citizenship in some other country, they escape service in their native country, and they can be drafted here, because they seem to succeed in the chase of the law in getting their cake and having it too. They get us both going and coming.

Congress has passed resolutions asking that treaties be entered with our allies for the drafting of their subjects now in this country. But some hitch has been encountered, the real nature of which has not been fully explained. Such treaties were drafted, but were withdrawn by the state department some two months ago.

It may be the government fears the establishment of some kind of a precedent that might be burdensome in future wars. Or our allies may be raising objections. But at a time when they need men power so badly, it is almost inconceivable that they would oppose such agreements.
Such tragedies ought to be strictly limited to the present war, as we ought not to make unlimited arrangements of this kind. If so limited, no precedent embarrassing in future
could be created.

It is grossly unjust that these men should be permitted to escape from the duty that confronts them. Why should our young men have to fight to keep them safe and prosperous here in this country? They owe as much to America as anyone. Let them help America in the hour of danger. Most of them would willingly comply if legally drafted.

Having acquired some freedom in reading words with not more than two syllables, and being able to write then tracks that can sometimes be deciphered, many boys conclude they know enough to succeed in life and decide to leave school.

The man responsible for stirring up a labor trouble today is fairly entitled to the Iron Cross from the Kaiser and the Double Cross from the American people.

The German soldiers have to be driven into battle by their officers, while the American officers have to drive our boys back to keep 'em out.

The German theory of solving their kill off their soldiers so they won't

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

THE MARINE.

He is always fit and ready.
He is always cool and steady.
He is always ready to laugh at danger.
And to fight his battles clear.
He is trim and he is snapper.
But he's every inch a scrapper.
And wherever he is, he is the thickest.
You can look for the marine.

He's the first to scent the battle
Pierce to hear the musketry rattle.
Pierce to ring old Glory's colors
Nath a foreign bit of sky.
He's the first of truth's defenses.
And when fighting grim commences,
He's the first to lead the charge.
For the flag he's first to die.

He is rough sometimes in manner.
But he loves his country's banner
And a sailor and a soldier.
Or a man of peace and law.
In the wild untutored places.
He can teach the savage graces.
And he'll build a Yankee schoolhouse
With a hammer and a saw.

He can level mountain ridges.
Cross the rivers with his bridges.
Pierce to ring old Glory's colors
Nath a foreign bit of sky.
And a ruined town restores.
'Till Sam has never tasked him
With a job or never asked him
For a special brand of service
That he wasn't ready for.

He's a son of fine tradition.
Spreading freedom in his mission.
You'll find him always and him grinning
Everywhere the flag is seen.
When the bullets start to fly
And the days are grim and trying.
You can thank the Lord above you
For the U. S. A. Marine.

LETTER TELLS OF DRIVE AGAINST HUN

Private J. E. King, Former Member of Company M, Writes of Janesville Boys in Action.

Another letter telling of the drive
made against the Germans the last of May in which many Janesville boys took part has been received from Private James E. King, a former member of Co. M, and later transferred to Co. A, 28th Infantry in France.
His letter reads as follows:

June 2, 1918
Dearest Mother:
I received your welcome letter and sure was glad to know everything was all right at home. I am getting along fine and have not been sick a day since coming over here, only a little cold, but nothing to worry about and I keep on feeling the same way.
The weather has been fine and I was sure glad that while we were up at the front. It only rained one day while we were there. That was our first time up. The second time it did not rain at all, only it was pretty cool at nights.

Well, mother, I have seen some very exciting times in the last few days, but am still on top and hope to stay until we have given Fritz a good taste of how Americans can fight; and by the way we are doing things he realizes it. Maybe by this time you have read about the big drive we made. Most of the boys in Company M were there. We sure struck old Fritz a hard blow and it will take him some time to come out of it. He came back at us four or five times but it was no use. He might as well have tried to knock a stone wall down.

Know my letters don't amount to much, but just so you know I am well
and getting along all right, that is all I care about. As far as this country, is concerned I would not trade the smallest place in the U. S. for all of it.

I love to all and write as often as you can, and don't bother about sending anything, for it is just luck that I will get it. I sure had a pleasant birthday this year, and what I will not forget in a long time. Will close for now. Good luck! JIM.

SOLDIERS IN FRANCE APPRECIATE SMOKES SENT BY GAZETTE

Messages Received Thanking Gazette
for Tobacco Sent Under "Our Boys
in France" Tobacco Fund.

Some idea of just how much the boys in France appreciate good American tobacco after they have had a taste of the French variety is given in several notes received at the Gazette office today from the members of Troop "D" of the Third U. S. Cavalry, thinking the people of Janesville for the tobacco sent them through the Gazette "Our Boys in France Tobacco Fund." Those who donated money to this fund can feel satisfied that they have made a gift to the boys
which they greatly appreciate. Received the smokes O. Frank.
And "Many thanks for the smokes."
And similar messages are written on the cards received.

One member of Troop "D," Private Joseph H. Jackson, was so thankful that he wrote a long letter in which he tells of the spirit of the French.
His letter follows:

"Dear Sir: Your box in hand
from the 'Our Boys in France Tobacco Fund.' It came in handy and you may be sure that every smoke I appreciated to the limit. They got across here sometimes and then is when a 'pill' looks like a million.

"I'd like to be able to write you about the country but you probably know as well as I do that I can't write much. The French are very different from Americans—a quiet,
easy-going, hard-working people.
Their pluck is to be admired but they lack improvement in the country.
They seem to be at a standstill. The work is all done by hand as it was there in America in the 'forties.' Once in a while I see a mowing machine—I've seen one McCormick mower here—but most of them use
the old reliable scythe and rake.

"Women are doing the most of the work now, and old men and boys.
The young bloods are all in the 'big mix' in one place or another, and you surely have to hand it to them. They come home on rest leave and work in the fields until their leave is up. And all I've seen planted over here is grain and the old standby—potatoes.
The cattle, horses and all are in the same house, the family on one side and the stable on the other. Queer customs and all that, but just the same they are to be admired for the way they have done things over here.

"I must close now. I am sorry I can't tell you just what we are doing and all that, but I will remain,
Yours truly,
"Private Joseph H. Jackson, Troop
D, 3rd Cavalry, Advance Section, S. O. S., A. E. F. France. A. P.
O. 763."

WHO'S WHO in the Dax's News

Frederick Gillett was made minority leader of the House in the enforced and prolonged absence of Representative Mann of Illinois.

Gillett has been a member of the House of Representatives from the Second District of Massachusetts for twenty-six years, having been first elected in 1893. Twenty-three of those legislative years he spent in Washington as a bachelor, and the most of the time sought by the hostess, who is always keen to attach
the single guest
man to her list
of guests. If he happens to be
also wealthy and if I'll want he is pursued ruthlessly.

Gillett is a graduate of Harvard College and
of the Harvard Law School, and became a member of the bar at the age of twenty.

Springfield, before coming to the National Congress he was assistant attorney general of Massachusetts and member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

He is a scholarly man, conservative and painstaking. Through years of service, conscientiously rendered,
he sustains a prestige in the lower House of Congress not unlike that of his compatriot in the Senate, Henry Cabot Lodge.

He has been in Congress through two more sessions than Mann, and yet he is not only unbroken, but thoroughly fit for strenuous work. Temperamentally, Gillett could manage two leaderships, and with entire efficiency, because he has the pulse that makes for endurance, something foreign to the gentleman from Illinois with his highly strung, nervous individuality.

There is a genial side to Gillett, too,
that appeals to those who know him even over so slightly, as belongs to Mann, too, but it is necessary to know him years, perhaps, before discovering his wit and his infinitely good nature.

Another Shipment of the Famous Wirthmor $1.00 Waists Just Received in Time for the Fourth

Our attitude toward the price question is evidenced in the sale of Wirthmor $1.00 Waists. Keep the prices as low as you possibly can. That's the spirit of the forward-looking, right-minded, progressive retailers. We are still enabled to sell Wirthmor Waists at $1.00, because of fortunate merchandising arrangement which still brings them to us at their former very moderate price. Desire coinciding with ability to keep prices down, explains why our price has not been advanced. The continued sale of these Wirthmor Waists at $1.00, when they would readily sell for considerably higher prices is merely illustrative of our determination to aid our patrons in the exercise of real thrift and economy, wherever opportunity offers. Many of the materials out of which these Blouses are made now cost double what they did a year ago, and it is only because they were purchased at that time that the maker's price to us has not as yet advanced.

TRINITY CHOIR BOYS LEAVE ON ANNUAL OUTING

Camping Party of Twenty-six Left This Morning for Mirror Lake, Near Delton, Wis., to Spend Two Weeks.

Twenty-two members of Trinity Episcopal church choir, in charge of Rev. Henry Willmann, left early this morning for Mirror Lake, near Delton, Wis., to enjoy their twenty-first annual outing. Here, under the shade of pine trees on a hill overlooking the lake, the tents will be pitched and for two weeks outdoor life will be enjoyed by the boys as a reward for their year's work at the Sunday school. The outing is a long-standing custom of the church and the boys will sing at the services conducted by Rev. Willmann at Holy Cross church in Delton that day.

The mess tent will be presided over by Mrs. A. J. Mosher, assisted by Misses Margaret Smith and Bertha Christensen. The entire camping party numbers twenty-six, as large a number as has ever gone in former years.

PRIV. OTTO HANSEN WOUNDED IN BATTLE

Private Henry Swanson, Himself Wounded, Helps Private Hansen to First Aid Station

A letter from Private Otto Hansen, a former member of Co. M, and now lying wounded in a French hospital, tells how he was wounded in battle and how Henry Swanson, who was also wounded, helped him to reach the first-aid station, refusing to go alone and save himself. Heroic action such as this shows the spirit of the American troops. Private Hansen's letter reads as follows:

In a hospital, Somewhere in France

Dear Friend:

I wrote you a few days ago telling you about the big battle the American boys were in. We held our own all the way through.

You can see by the heading of my letter that I was wounded this time. Was shot through my foot. The doctor said he thought I would be all right in time. Will be laid up about six weeks or two months. We have two doctors here and good care. They do all they can to make it pleasant for us.

Will tell you about an incident that will show what real friendship is. I saw what an American soldier is like. Henry Swanson was with me and helped me to the first dressing station. I told him to go ahead and save himself but he said nothing doing. If you go under I go with you. So we got there together. That is the spirit among our boys here. With that we can't help but win this war.

I don't worry about me. With God's help I will come back some day when it is all over. Am waiting for the day when I am able to go to the front again and kill a few more Germans. It can't come too quickly for me.

I can't write much this time as I am still weak. Send my love to my old folks and I will get it when I get back to my company again.

Say hello to all the rest for me.

Yours truly,

OTTO HANSEN.

ALL-STARS DEFEAT NATIONALS SUNDAY AT EAGLES' PICNIC

First Ball Game at Crystal Springs. Ends With Score 8 to 5 in Favor of Stars.

The Eagles held their thirteenth annual picnic Sunday at Crystal Springs. Despite the bad weather the large crowd made an enjoyable time and passed the time in various ways.

The feature of the day's festivities was a ball game, in which the Jamesville All-Stars triumphed over the Nationals by a score of 8 to 5. The game was close up to the seventh inning, but the All-Stars gathered in six runs in the last two innings of play and secured the game. In the eighth frame Art Marks of the Stars potted a three-bagger with two men on bases, which clinched the game. Errors gave the Nationals their runs. Art Mark was on the mound for the Nationals, but retired for Fleming in the seventh inning. Marshall was catching for the Nationals until he was hit by a foul ball. While this was going on the finger made him retire for Schaefer. Crowley was behind the bat for the Stars and C. Bick did the catching.

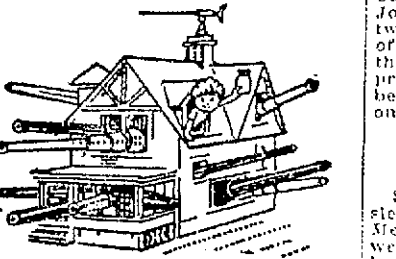

Next Sunday the All-Stars will play at the Eagles' picnic at Crystal Springs.

Camp Grant, Ill., June 30.—An important announcement was made today by Captain Curtis Coe, who has charge of the Army Canteens, stating that the 1st Army Canteens will cooperate with the Camp Grant restaurants in feeding the throngs of visitors on July 4. Facilities are being provided for the entertaining and feeding of 150,000 visitors at the lowest minimum charge. ### WELL KNOWN CIVIL WAR VETERAN VISITS HERE

Col. and Mrs. E. O. Kimberly, 108 N. 13th street, have just had a very interesting visit from Thos. H. Brown, of Sioux Falls, S. Dakota. Mr. Brown is connected with the Rock Island system of Railways, and is a well-known representative west of the Mississippi river. At 81 he is exceedingly vigorous and active, and as inspector general of the Grand Army of the Republic, fully attends to his duties. It may be interesting to know that Mr. Kimberly, Brown and John Oswald of Lancaster, Wis., are the only three remaining members of the Third Wisconsin regimental band (Captain Rieger) of about thirty members, left, who entered the service when the Civil war began. When regimental bands were disbanded with Col. Kimberly returned home and organized a brigade band of twenty-five members, who, upon entering the service, were known as Sherman's Band to the Sea. Five, in all, of the two bands, (including the three first named) remain. The two members only of the second enlistment are E. A. Knickerbocker of Los Angeles, Calif., and John Sullivan of Emporia, Kans. The two bands were under the leadership of Col. Kimberly. It will be noticed that from first to last, and up to the present time, that nearly all have been mustered out and have passed on to the Eternal Camping Ground.

FROM THE GERMAN PAPERS. According to the German papers, the U-boat activities in and about the United States are becoming very serious. Some of the Teutonic accounts follow: Several U-boats have the state of Utah terrorized. They are operating on two sides of it. Three U-boats sighted by people of Toledo, Ohio, have that city in a panic. Plan to send U-boats through the subway to the very heart of New York City. Shell from U-boat demolishes large stone courthouse at Chillicothe, Ohio. Johnstown, Pa., will feel the weight of the German mailed fist, which, is now in striking distance.

"They say I am worth seeing," said Silas. "This is my friend, Mr. Barnes. Mr. Barnes is a lawyer. When you are tired of seeing me, look at him."

"I shook the hand he offered me. Of course, we can't all be good looking," Sally remarked with a sigh, as if her misfortune were permanent. Mr. Barnes, however, told him in a whisper what had happened to Sally. While Mr. Latour looked a little embarrassed.

"My face is not beautiful, but they say that I have a good heart," Sally assured the stranger. They started on. I excused myself and took a trail through the woods to another road. Just then, with Sally waving her hand to me as I stood for a moment in the edge of the woods, the curtain falls on this highly romantic period of my life.

"Dear Bart—Mr. Latour gave up and drove to Potsdam in the evening. Said he had to meet Mr. Parish. I think that he had seen even of me. I began to hope he would stay—he was so good looking, but mother is very glad that he went, and so am I. For my mamma told me that he is one of the wealthiest young men in the state. He is very rich and very bad, they say. I wonder if Old Kate knew about him. Her charm worked well anyway. Silas said that he would meet me Saturday. Mother said I can't meet you Saturday. Mother said I am packing up to go away for the summer. Don't forget me. I shall be thinking every day of those lovely things you said to me. I don't know what they will try to do with me, and I don't care. I really think as you do, that God has married us to each other."

"Sally Dinklerberg."

How often I read those words, as like the careless words of the young.

CHAPTER XIV.

Three times that winter I had seen Benjamin Grimshaw followed by the Silent Woman, dressed in black and pointing with her finger. Mr. Latour said that he had seen her. He pointed out to me a little window above the blacksmith's shop that overlooked the south road. When he came to town she followed. I always greet the woman when she passed by, but when she was on the trail of the money-lender she seemed unaware of my presence, so intent was she on the strange task she had in mind. If he were not in sight she smiled when passing me, but neither spoke nor nodded.

Grimshaw had gone about his business as usual when I saw him last, but I had noted a look of the worried rat in his face. He had seemed to be under extreme irritation. He scolded every man who spoke to him. The notion came to me that her finger was pointing down to the quick. The trial of Ames came on. He had had "blood on his feet," as they used to say. All the way from Belknap to Lewis county, he had been followed, attacked, and slightly wounded two men with a bowie knife who had tried to detain him at Baldy Lake. He had also shot an officer in the county of Lawrence, where his arrest was effected. He had been identified by all these men, and so his character as a desperate man had been established. This in connection with the scar on his face and the tracks, which the boots of Ames shed, and the broken gun stock convinced the jury of his guilt.

The most interesting bit of testimony which came out of the trial was this passage from a yellow paper-covered tale which had been discovered hidden in the hayrack of the Grimshaw team. Lightfoot waited in the bushes with his trigger still in hand. When the two unsuspecting travelers reached a point nearly opposite him he raised his rifle and fired over the shining barrel and saw that the flight of his bullet would cut the throats of both his prey. He pulled the trigger and the bullet sped to its mark. Both men fell down on the ground as if they had been smitten by a thunderbolt. Lightfoot leaped from cover and seized the bleeding horses, and mounting one of them while he held the other, headed them down the trail, and in no great hurry, for he knew that the lake was between him and Ridgett and that the latter's horse was in no condition to hold water.

It was the swift and deadly execution of Lightfoot which Ames had been hinting at, as he presently confessed.

I knew then the power of words—even foolish words—over the minds of the young when they are printed and spread abroad. I remember well the look of the venerable Judge Brady as he pronounced the sentence of death upon Ames Grimshaw. A ray of sunlight shunting through a window in the late afternoon fell upon his enigmatic countenance, shining also, with the softer light of his spirit. Slowly, solemnly, kindly, he spoke the words of doom. It was his way of saying them that made me feel the dignity and majesty of the law. The kind and fatherly tone of his voice put me in mind of that Supreme Court which is above all question and which is worthy to enter judgment in this matter and in others related to it.

Slowly the crowd moved out of the court room. Benjamin Grimshaw rose and calmly whispered to his lawyer. He had not spoken to his son or son-in-law since the trial had begun, nor did he now. Many had shed tears that day, but not Mr. Grimshaw never showed but one emotion—that of anger. He was now, however, his face was hard and stern. He muttered as he walked out of the court room, his cane briskly beating the floor. I and others followed him, moved by different motives. I was sorry for him and if I had dared I should have told him that I was amazed to see how sturdy he stood under this blow. I thought out in a storm. The look of him thrilled me—it suggested that something was going to happen.

The Silent Woman, as ragged as ever, was waiting on the steps. Out went her bony finger as he came down. He turned and struck at her with his cane and shouted in a shrill voice that rang out like a trumpet in his frenzy.

"Go away from me. Take her away, somebody. I can't stand it. She's killing me. Take her away. Take her away. Take her away."

His face turned purple and then white. He reeled and fell headlong, like a tree severed from its roots, and lay still on the hard, stone pavement. The crowd was falling on his face—it grew so white. The Silent Woman stood as still as he, pointing at him with her finger. Her look unchanged. People came running to him. I lifted the head of Mr. Grimshaw and laid it on my knee. It felt like the head of the stranger in the battlefield. Old Kate bent over him, like a crow, and began to pick at the eyelids of the man, which fluttered faintly and were still. "Dead!" she muttered.

Ten, as if her work were finished, she turned and walked slowly down the street. Men stood aside to let her pass, as if they felt the power of her spirit and feared the touch of her garments.

Two or three men had run to the house of the nearest doctor. The crowd thickened. As I sat looking down at the dead face in my lap, the court room pressed near me and bent over and looked at the set eyes of Benjamin Grimshaw and said:

"Who got him?" another asked.

"Rovin' Kate," she killed him pointing her finger at him—go."

"She got an evil eye. Everybody's afraid of the evil eye of Trollope."

"Nonsense! She isn't half as crazy as the most of us," said the lawyer.

"In my opinion she is half as crazy as you, holding her finger at that man. She came from the same town he did over in Vermont. You don't know what happened there. The crowd was waiting for him. He laid beside the still figure and made the test. He rose and shook his head, saying boys 'it's all over. Let one of us bury him.' Benjamin Grimshaw, the richest man in the township, was dead, and I have yet to hear of any mourning."

Then came the funeral. The little, broken-spirited fellow stood there with the same sad smile on her face that I had noted when I first saw her in the hills. (Rovin' Kate was there in the clothes she had worn Christmas day. She was greatly changed. Her hair was neatly combed. The wild look had left her eyes. She was like one whose burden is relieved of a heavy burden. Her lips moved as she scattered little red squares of paper into the grave. I suppose they thought it a crazy thing to do—they who saw her do it. I thought that I understood the curious bit of symbolism and so did the schoolmaster, who stood beside me. Doubtless the pieces of paper numbered her curses.

"The scarlet sins of his youth are lying down with him in the dust," Hackett whispered as we walked away together.

CHAPTER XV.

Uncle Peabody's Why and Mine.

"I am old and poor and have earned something that I think I have earned it. Why do I impose upon myself the task of writing down these memories, searching them and many notes and recording with great care that in every voice and deed the time shall speak? My first care has been that neither vanity nor pride should mar a word of all these I have written or said. So I keep my name from you dear reader, for there is nothing you can give me that I want. I have learned my lesson in that distant time and, by the way, I give you the things I learned for and keep myself under a mask. These things urge me to my task. I do it that I may give to you—my countrymen—the best of the great garden of my youth and save it from the cold storage of unknown history."

It is a hard thing to be under a heavy obligation to one's self of which I thank God I am now acquitted. I have known men who were their own worst enemies. Everything they earned or won they put out of house and home, thrown neck and crop into the street as it were, by one or the other of these heartless creditors—each grasping usurer with unjust claims.

I remember that Rodney Barnes called for my chest and me that fine morning in early June when I was going back to the hills. My year's work in school being ended, I elected to walk, and the schoolmaster went with me five miles or more across the flats to the slope of the high country. I felt very wise with that year's learning in my head. Doubtless the best of it had come not in school. It had taken me close to the great stage and in a way lifted the curtain of the most attractive knowing that presently I should get my part.

"I've been thinking, Bart, of your work in the last year," said the schoolmaster, as we walked on. "We have tried six books and one—God help me! An' I think you have got more out of the one that ye have out of the six."

In a moment of silence that followed I counted the books on my fingers: Latin, Arithmetic, Algebra, Grammar, Geography, History. What was this one book he referred to?

"It's God's book of life, boy, an' I should say ye'd done very well in it."

After a little he asked: "Have ye ever heard of a man who had the Grimshaw?"

I shook my head as I looked at him, not knowing just what he was driving at.

"Sure, it's a serious illness an' it has two phases. First, there's the Grimshaw of greed—swinish, heartless greed—the other is the Grimshaw of vanity—the strutter, with sword at belt, who would have men bow or flee before him."

That is all he said of that seventh book and it was enough.

"Soon the Senator will be coming," he remarked vaguely.

About him have been flying around like pigeons. When school is out I would like to hear from you, what is the record? What do you think of the soul in him? If you will let me maybe I can help the plans of God a little. That is my business and yours. Thanking you for reading this, I am, as ever, God's servant.

"KATE FULLERTON."

"Canterbury, Vt., June 1.

"Dear Sir—I am interested in the boy Barton, Baynes. Good words about him have been flying around like pigeons. When school is out I would like to hear from you, what is the record? "Why, this is the writing of the Silent Woman," I said before I had read the letter half through.

"Rovin' Kate," I never knew her other name, but I saw her handwriting long ago.

"But look—this is a neatly written, well-ordered letter and the sheet is as white and clean as the new snow. Uncanny woman, the way she can keep it so neat. What kind of work is best for her? If you will let me maybe I can help the plans of God a little. That is my business and yours. Thanking you for reading this, I am, as ever, God's servant."

Dinner Stories

Johnny and his mother were dining with a friend. The first course was chicken soup with macaroni in it. The hostess watched Johnny as he sat quietly gazing into his plate. Finally she asked, "Why don't you eat your soup, Johnny?"

"I don't care for it, please, mamma."

"But your mamma said you liked chicken soup."

"I do like mamma's chicken soup, but she don't put the windpipes in."

The little bride was getting ready to cook her first turkey for the Christmas dinner in the new home. His folks were coming on a visit and in honor of the event she proudly ordered a twelve-pounder.

Now, it sometimes happens that in a hurry of that busy season the pickers of the fowls are too hurried and too careless to get the various parts of the anatomy placed as they should be.

On the day the turkey was delivered, the butcher was called to the telephone, when a voice at the other end said: "I want you to send after this turkey right away. I won't keep it." The butcher could not understand, and when he asked why, she said: "It's deformed, and I couldn't swallow a mouthful of it."

Now it so happened that he had personally wrapped up that fowl and he thought at the time what a fine one it was, so he asked for an explanation, and over the wire came the words: "It has no gizzards."

It is said of a few Germans who were stormed by the British that they called out for mercy, adding: "The vos Pomeranians."

"Well, then," called out one soldier, "you're blooming lucky to fall into my hands, for I'm a dog fancier."

LIMA

Lima, June 29.—Cadet Earl Reese came home from the Great Lakes Station Thursday night to spend a few days with his parents.

Mrs. A. A. Reese entertained friends from Edgerton Thursday.

Mrs. Brown and daughter, Josephine, have been spending the week with Lima friends.

There was a little moment of silence then—how well I remember it! The schoolmaster broke the silence by saying:

"Well, you know, lad, I think the greatest thing that Jesus Christ did was showing to a wicked world the sanctity of motherhood."

That I think was the last lesson in the school year. Just beyond as I could see the slant of Bowman's Hill. What an amount of pains they gave those days to the building of character! It will seem curious and perhaps wearisome now, but it must show here if I am to hold the mirror up to the time.

"Never mind the reason, she is your friend and let us thank God for it. Think how she came to your help in the old bar and say a thousand prayers, my lad. I shall write to her today, and what shall I say as to the work?"

"I've been consulting the compass," I answered thoughtfully, as I looked down at the yielding sand under my feet. I think that I want to be a lawyer.

"Good! You would have guessed it. I suppose your work in the court room with the fine old judge and the lawyers settled that for ye."

"I think that it did."

"Well, the Senator is a lawyer, God prosper him an' he has shown us that the chief business of the lawyer is to keep men out of the law."

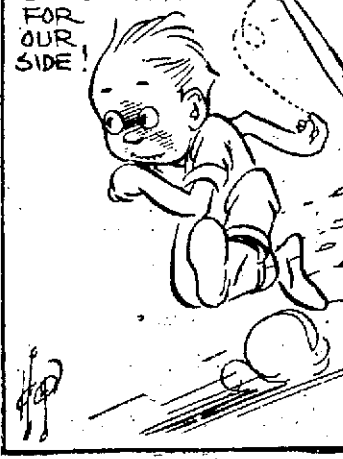

Having come to the first flight of the uplands, he left me with many a kind word—how much they mean to a boy who is choosing his way with a growing sense of loneliness.

I reached the warm welcome of our little home just in time for dinner. They were expecting me and it was a regular company dinner—chicken pie and strawberry shortcake.

house was found to be burning. How the fire organized is a mystery, but supposed some "tramp" might have spent the night there. The building was burned to the ground and a number of chickens and hens that were setting were also burned. We are at war and should stir us to greater enthusiasm and activity. This supper will be served on the Cafeteria plan beginning about 5:00 or 5:30 o'clock and continue until all are served. Everybody come and celebrate the glorious Fourth of July in this quiet, patriotic and helpful manner.

One of the community is worth what they are willing to pay for it, is the slogan governing the citizens of the village.

The Orfordville Light and Power Company will in the near future add a flouring mill to their equipment.

Their feed milling has become so popular that people come from below the village for work and they figure that their is an excellent opening for the manufacture of flour. The order was placed for the equipment on Saturday and delivery will be made within sixty days.

Parties are in the village making a government valuation survey of the railroad property. Several hands are employed.

The regular meeting of the village board was held on Friday. Aside from the transaction of the routine business the board granted license to the union of two firms, one of the village and one in connection with the Kozy Korner.
